

EMORY
UNIVERSITY

Emory Writing Center

Support for Students in the Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing

Overview of Writing Center Consulting Services

What do Writing Center Tutors and Fellows Do?

The Writing Center's highly interdisciplinary staff of undergraduate tutors and graduate fellows, including two SON students—Althea Johnson and Amy Labib—are available to support BSN, MSN, DNP and PhD students in the school of nursing. They can assist with a range of projects, including course papers, dissertation chapters, articles, posters, abstracts, and grants. Through one-on-one consultations, they work with students at any stage of the writing process on any issues of concern, including idea development, structure, use of sources, grammar, and word choice. Writing Center tutors do not proofread. Instead, their consultations equip you with strategies and resources you can continue to use as you write, revise, and edit on your own. Tutors also support the literacy needs of English Language Learners; several tutors are ELL Specialists, who have received additional training.

Why Should I Visit the Writing Center?

In the anonymous exit surveys they complete after each appointment, students from across the disciplines consistently rate their Writing Center consultations as “excellent,” credit the center with making them better writers, and indicate that they would recommend the center to their friends. Whether you consider yourself a strong writer or you're struggling, everyone can benefit from discussing their work with a peer. Why not take advantage of this incredible resource?

Where is the Writing Center, and When is it Open?

The Writing Center is located in Callaway (north wing) room N-111. In addition to in-person consultations, the center offers a limited number of distance appointments for those who qualify.

The Writing Center opens for the Spring 2020 semester on January 28th. Spring hours are Monday-Thursday 11am-8pm, Friday 11am-5pm, and Sunday 12pm-8pm.

Learn More about the Writing Center and Make an Appointment

Learn more about the Writing Center and make an appointment through the center's website:

<http://www.writingcenter.emory.edu/>. Please review tutoring policies before your visit. Please note that a maximum of 2 appointments are allowed each week, and you need to bring hard copies of drafts to your appointments.